

East Berlin Crisis About to Explode

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON, (AP) — U.S. officials believe an extremely explosive situation may build up very rapidly in East Germany if the Communist regime succeeds in clamping down drastically on the flow of refugees into West Berlin.

Such a situation might have the effect of speeding up the Berlin crisis—bringing it to a fever pitch of tension well before the end of this year. Soviet Premier Khrushchev has threatened to sign a separate peace treaty with East Germany before the year is out.

Refugees from the German Communist rule have been fleeing into West Berlin at a rate sometimes approaching 2,000 a day. The total for this year is now close to 150,000. The East German population is about 17.2 million.

East German Deputy Premier Willy Stoph hinted Friday that measures to stop the refugee flow might be taken soon. He said East German travel regulations have been "shamelessly misused."

U.S. experts on German affairs say the effect of cutting off the flight of refugees would be to bottle up in East Germany thousands of discontented people with the result that in their frustration they might turn to outbursts of violence. These could embarrass the Soviet-backed Communist government and create an even higher degree of instability for it.

In event of serious rioting, and particularly if the German Communist forces were unable to cope with the situation, Soviet forces might be employed to restore order.

In 1953, Soviet troops were used to quell riots in several East German cities. At least 17 Soviet divisions were used to enforce a Soviet-proclaimed state of martial law in East Berlin. The uprisings, begun by East German workers, began in mid-June and continued to some degree into September.

The refugee problem is known to have gained the attention of Secretary of State Dean Rusk and other U.S. officials, though there appears to be nothing effective they can do about it at the moment.

Rusk, who returned Thursday night from Berlin crisis talks with allied leaders in Europe, made a personal report to President Kennedy Friday on the progress of NATO planning for both military and diplomatic moves to meet the Soviet challenge over the future of West Berlin.

Leaving Kennedy's office, Rusk told newsmen he had found "a high degree of unity among the Western allies on the Berlin problem."

Reward to Civilian Air Victims

WASHINGTON, (AP) — Civilian victims of military missile or aircraft disasters could be given immediate emergency payments of up to $1,000 under a bill approved Thursday by the Senate Armed Services Committee.

Testifying for the Defense Department, Air Force Lt. Col. J. W. Scanlan said the authority was needed "to alleviate human suffering and prevent further damage to property."

He said military officials had been unable to grant emergency financial aid to victims of several disasters in recent years, under present authority to settle claims.

The witness cited the explosion of an air force bomber March 31, 1960 over Little Rock, Ark., when two civilians were killed, others injured, six homes destroyed and 125 other homes damaged. Three crewmen also were killed in the crash.

The House had approved an emergency payment of up to $2,000 in such cases but the Senate committee cut this back to the original Pentagon request of $1,000.

Such payments would be deducted from any later damage awards and they would not concede government liability for larger awards.

The legislation now goes to the Senate.

Khrushchev in Same Old Line of Talks

By REINHOLD G. ENS

MOSCOW, (AP) — Premier Khrushchev, reiterating he is ready to negotiate, today welcomed President Kennedy's expression of hope for a peaceful solution in Germany. "We believe common sense will win," he said.

But in almost the same breath he insisted that the United States respect the Soviet Union as a great power "not afraid of any threats." And in a speech marked by shouting and arm waving, he declared hundreds of millions will die if a new war is set off.

He harked back to the Paris summit conference of May 1960, which broke down before it got started, and said Prime Minister Harold Macmillan of Britain tried to make peace between Khrushchev and then President Dwight D. Eisenhower after the Soviet leader demanded an apology because of the U2 spy plane incident.

Khrushchev quoted Macmillan as saying: "You must understand this is a powerful country and you cannot expect them to apologize." Sharply striking the speaker's rostrum, Khrushchev said he replied: "We to are a great country and we demand an apology when we are insulted."

Khrushchev made it clear that at stake in the Berlin crisis is the question of Western recognition of Soviet prestige and power. The Soviet leader emphasized this point by shaking his fist and shouting unrestrainedly to his delighted audience.

He again appealed for negotiations to bring a German peace treaty, repealing his assurances that people of West Berlin would not be disturbed and that access to the city by Western countries would be guaranteed.

He said that if the West would not participate, "We will be forced to sign a peace treaty without them."

"Let's not threaten, let's not do things which widen the gap between us, let's sit down at the table and discuss things quietly," he said.

"Today, I read about President Kennedy's press conference. He said he hoped to achieve a peaceable solution. Such a statement we hail. Toward that the efforts of the Soviet Union are directed."

"We believe that common sense will win. We hope the Western powers will decide that the conclusion of a peace treaty will bring better results than sabre rattling or playing with fire."

Training Starts at Fort Chaffee

PORT CHAFFEE, Ark. (AP) — Nearly 6,000 Army reservists from Oklahoma, Arkansas and Louisiana will start two weeks of practicing their mobilization role next Sunday.

They are members of the 95th Division, a training division. They will spend their two weeks of summer camp giving refresher training to inactive Army reservists from Arkansas, Oklahoma, Louisiana, Texas and New Mexico.

Officers said the 95th could begin training recruits within a week after it was called to active duty in an emergency. The summer camp is labeled a practice mobilization to test the buildup capacities of the Army.

Merchants to Hear About New Laws

L. C. Baber, managing director of the Arkansas Council of Retail Merchants, will discuss the state shoplifting law and the hot check law at a dinner meet here Tuesday, Aug. 22, at 7 p. m. at Hotel Barlow.

Law enforcement agencies will be represented at this meeting. There is no charge for the meal and all local merchants are invited. The meeting is sponsored by the Hope Retail Promotion Association.

The rebels broadcast a revolutionary manifesto after seizing the telephone exchange which controls all radio lines, giving the impression at first that it was a nationwide revolt.

Police and troops were rushed to buildings where the rebels were holed up, but held their fire.

Armed with pistols and light machineguns, the rebels fired when police approached the telephone building only 25 blocks from Government House where Frondizi was meeting with his political and military aides.

The rebels claimed in their brief broadcast that they had no political links.

A law student, Hector Correa, among those who surrendered at the radio station, identified the leader of the rebels as his brother, Air Force Commander Vicente Correa.

Declaring that calm prevailed throughout the rest of the country, the communique said "the armed forces with the support of the people guarantee peace and constitutional security."

The president did not appear disturbed by the uprising. Almost immediately he telephoned assurance to his economic minister, Roberto Alemann, at the Inter-American Conference that everything was normal in Buenos Aires. He told Alemann not to worry about the revolt and continue working at the parley.

The United States proposed creation of the commission when the conference began but pulled back when Argentina, Brazil, Mexico, Chile and Peru demanded that it be demoted to an advisory group.

The larger nations, which already have their own development programs, want to deal directly with the United States and the various lending agencies instead of going through an over-all hemispheric board.

Bolivia, threatened by revolutionary ferment, won the first small-nation victory with a motion calling for priority to aid to small countries. Brazil, which has serious economic troubles in her own northeast, sought to change the wording to read "regions" in direct need.

The Bolivian motion won 19-1, with the United States voting alongside the Cuban regime whose revolutionary influence it seeks to counteract with the alliance for Progress program.

The conference has attracted private investors from many parts of the world — representatives of railroads, banks, power and automobile interests among others.

They are showing an interest in pouring billions of dollars into the U.S.-sponsored aid program—but first are seeking to find out how it can be done best, the risks involved and particularly what Latin American business interests are willing to contribute.

Attempt to Seize Control Is Smashed

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — The Argentine government today declared it has smashed a midnight attempt to topple President Arturo Frondizi's regime by a handful of rebels labeling themselves anti-Communist nationalists.

Only a few of the 50-man band still held out in the capital's telephone exchange. A navy officer backed by police and marines was negotiating their surrender.

The rest of the insurgents gave themselves up less than five hours after they had seized the government radio station to broadcast claims they were taking over the government.

Frondizi declared in a communique shortly after the rebels had broadcast their electrifying announcement that the attempted revolt was a dud. There was no bloodshed.

The government announcement blamed the pocket sized uprising on "hotheads." It accused them of trying to upset internal peace and damage Argentina's prestige abroad.

Government officials appeared convinced the attempted revolt had no important political significance. Frondizi remained in his office through the night waiting for final word that all resistance had been wiped out.

The abortive revolt caused a flurry of excitement. It roused fears that it might create confusion at the Inter-American Conference at Punta del Este, Uruguay, where delegates are seeking to implement President Kennedy's Alliance for Progress program.

Queen Involved in Politics

LONDON (AP) — Britons were told today their Queen—who never mixes in politics — is playing an unwitting role in West Germany's federal election campaign.

Millions picked up their newspapers at breakfast time to see a cartoon strip showing a smiling Queen Elizabeth talking with Chancellor Konrad Adenauer.

"Partner der freien Welt" — partners in the free world.

Newspapers said the booklet was issued by Adenauer's Christian Democratic Party to help him votes in next month's election.

Byrd Leads Fight Against Loans Abroad

By ERNEST B. VACCARO

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Harry F. Byrd, D-Va., leads an apparently doomed fight today against President Kennedy's request for authority to borrow money to finance five years of economic development loans abroad.

Byrd's amendment requiring the President to come back to Congress each year for appropriations was set for a Senate vote tonight after seven hours of debate. Each side will have 3 1/2 hours to discuss the amendment with debate to start shortly after disposal of routine business. The Senate arranged to meet an hour early.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana worked out this arrangement Thursday with unanimous Senate support. Under the agreement the Senate will remain in session as late as necessary to vote on the Byrd amendment.

Kennedy's request for borrowing authority for a five-year, $8.1-billion program of loans to struggling nations is the chief item of controversy in the pending foreign aid bill.

The bill provides $4,326,500,000 in foreign aid this year, including $187,000,000 in the loan funds.

In a prepared Senate speech, Byrd, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee and a spokesman for the Senate's economy bloc, declared: "This is no time to relax control over any public spending, or to increase the public debt unnecessarily."

Byrd charged the Kennedy program would promote "poor risk" loans with no certainty of repayment.

He estimated that if no repayments are made over the maximum 50-year loan spans the added compound interest on the federal debt would total $29.7 billion.

Echoing the major contention of opponents of the proposed loan system, Byrd said all the money for the loan fund would come from the backdoor of the Treasury, "outside of effective annual appropriations control."

Administration leaders claimed they would turn back the Byrd amendment by a margin of 5 to 7 votes. They are counting on at least 6 of the Senate's 36 Republican votes. Byrd claimed he had the support of 43 to 45 of the Senate's 100 members.

In West Germany, three battle groups of the U.S. Army and tactical planes of the U.S. Air Force have just started a 10-day operation.

Up to 30,000 Army troops and a swarm of planes are in the midst of a two-week operation, called Swift Strike, to train and test out airborne and other techniques.

In South Korea—like West Germany, located on the perimeter of the Communist empire—2,000 troops of the 7th Infantry Division have teamed up with Republic of Korea units in "Operation Sharp Edge." A U.S. Navy amphibious force, including both landing craft and destroyers, is in the operation.

Heading down the west coast of South America is a Navy force of four destroyers, patrol planes and a submarine, beginning "Exercise Unifant II." Prime purpose of this exercise is to help train navies of eight South American countries in antisubmarine warfare. From time to time, some of the smaller nations in that area make searches for suspected Communist submarines. Exercise Unifant II will continue until early this winter.

A North Atlantic Treaty Organization training operation, Trade Wind Five, is under way in the western North Atlantic. This exercise, however, will be essentially a paper maneuver, to test out command functions. No big movement of ships is involved. Earlier this summer, U.S., Canadian and other ships held exercises in the same area.

Back in 1937 a Blytheville Newsman Described Midas Coaching of Foy Hammons

By MARY ANITA LASETER

In a column which appeared in a Blytheville paper in 1937 under the by-line of J. P. Friend, the headline read "Foy Hammons Is Past Master at Coaching Game If Here Is Any Way to Put Hope Ahead He'll Try It."

The writer went on to say, "One of the main reasons why the Hope Bobcats should be feared in Friday night's game is the fact that Foy Hammons will be sitting on the visitors' bench."

"Just in case the name has escaped memory, Foy Hammons is at present head coach of the Hope Bobcats. He has been doing that sort of thing for almost 20 years and has the distinct habit of turning out winners."

Because the facts spoke for themselves, Friend was just what his name implied. He told the Hope coach had been one of the best athletes ever turned out in the state and had sealed even greater heights as a coach. "He is almost in a class by himself within the state and has received national acclaim by virtue of his products," Friend wrote.

Explaining that statement he cited, "Nineteen state, two tri-state, and one national championship in 17 different branches of sport is tribute enough to Hammons' skill and genius at producing. Under the directions of Coach Hammons Hope has risen from an obscure small school with practically no athletics to one of the front liners."

"In 1935, his first year, the Bobcats won 26 basketball games and lost but seven. His gridders broke even in 14 games. Last year they won nine, tied seven. His gridders broke even in 14 games. Last year they won nine, tied one, and lost one."

"His athletic days' date back more than two decades, but each year finds him cradling them over. At Little Rock High he won eight letters in four sports, basketball, football, track, and baseball."

Looking briefly at his college career we find that in his first year as a student at Jonesboro A&M College in 1915, he was chosen as fullback on the all-state first team which was named from all colleges and the university. The lanky athlete also played a major part in Arkansas A&M being able to win the state cage championship the two years he was there. After his graduation from the junior college, he went to the University of Indiana for a year and captained the Hoosier frosh basketball team as well as being alternate captain on the grid squad. World War I interrupted his college career and for 22 months he served with the A. E. F. during which time he coached a team in the army.

In 1919 he returned as head coach at Jonesboro A&M. According to Friend, "Hammons," Jonesboro A&M football teams of '19 and '20 were perhaps the greatest in school history. The Indians won eight and lost six. The basketballers captured 16 and lost half as many. He introduced baseball, his nine winning six and losing five.

"Fans at Pine Bluff were clamoring for a winner and selected the popular leader as their 'Moses.' He proved the right to the title for in five years at the helm of the Zebras, the juniors and seniors took 13 championships. They reached their peak in 1925 by being acclaimed national champions by defeating Dayton, Ohio.

Under Coach Hammons the Pine Bluff basketball juniors won the tri-state tournaments in Memphis in 1925 and 1926 and ranked fourth in Chicago in the national. Also in Chicago his crack track squad placed fifth in a meet in which 28 states were represented. They won the title in 1925.

During the five years he spent at Ouachita College Hammons had champs in '26 and his team were co-winners of the title with HSTC the following season. The track teams of '29, '30, and '31 ranked first in the state, and his basketball fives won the championship in '28 and '29.

"He moved over to Monticello in the fall of '31 and continued to wield his magic, wrote the Blytheville friend, who concluded his remarks with these words of praise:

"Yes, sir, this Hammons guy is a modern Midas. Everything he touches turns to gold-winning gold. And if the Chickasaws aren't extremely careful they, too, may be listed among the 'also rans.' If Foy can possibly bring his charges home in front, you can bank on him doing it. He is no respecter of persons or football teams or football records."

Washington (AP)—President Kennedy's explanation that a Pentagon curb on military talk aims at preventing "exploitation" of general and admirals failed to satisfy congressional critics today.

Sen. Styles Bridges, R-N.H., said he still favors an investigation by the Senate Armed Services Committee of the Defense Department directive. He and others contend it has "muzzled" military officers from speaking out on Communist infiltration and foreign policy matters.

Kennedy told his news conference yesterday that Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara's directive is not designed to restrain military leaders from speaking out but to prevent them from being "exploited for any partisan purpose."

Bridges said, however, that the directive was indignantly by a memorandum from Sen. J. William Fulbright of Arkansas, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, who complained that military-sponsored forums had featured "radical right wing speakers" in some instances.

"The armed services committee has jurisdiction in this field and it has not even been consulted about the directive," Bridges said. "I think we should go into the background of this matter."

Feild Proposal Is Turned Down

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Legislative Council today turned down a proposal that a special legislative call include raising additional funds for county road building.

The vote on the proposal by Hempstead County Rep. Talbot Feild was 11-10, with 13 needed for passage. Feild had proposed that $4 million be appropriated from the state's $11.7 million surplus for county roads. He said that with federal matching money this would give each county a $108,000 construction program.

Feild's measure never got to a vote, but a substitute proposal by Woodruff County Rep. Jack Oakes that would have asked the legislature to look for new revenue sources for county roads failed.

The Council voted to ask Gov. Orval E. Faubus to include in his special session call a resolution asking for an investigation of the base price paid Arkansas milk producers.

Lucky Not to Inherit Any Money

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—If you have not inherited any money lately, count yourself lucky.

You may be better off. Most of us tend to think the other way. Few of us shrink in horror from the prospect of being enriched by the passing of a distant relative or, for that matter, a total stranger.

It is a heartwarming hope to us all that somewhere, somehow, someone has mentioned us favorably—and remembered us financially—in his will, and that in the fullness of time the money will drop from the sky like a ripe plum. Even orphans, gypsies and bawdy bums cling fondly to this hope.

We all have the idea, too, that an unexpected inheritance would in some mysterious way solve all our problems and cure our present defects of character.

But would it, really? Actually, inherited money is just as likely to ruin as to enhance the character of its recipient.

Let me cite the terrifying experience of a friend of mine whose wife received a letter from a lawyer notifying her she had inherited a small bequest from a relative. The letter contained a form for her to sign.

Business Mail Gets Greater Every Year

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—Your boss may think the avalanche of mail grows more menacing every day. But chances are he doesn't see half of it—especially if he is the top boss.

Also, the bigger the company the smaller the percentage of the mail that reaches the chief executive's desk. And of the mail he does handle the greater is the proportion that has little direct connection with the firm's business.

Secretaries of big corporations can confirm this. Also they can tell you that a large part of the paper hitting the "in" and "out" boxes is of the interoffice memo variety or the letter from company divisions in other cities.

As a man rises up the executive ladder the more likely he is to tell his subordinates what he has to say by phone, but to ask them for written memos.

Secretaries note, however, that top men like to do as much as possible of the firm's business with other chief executives by direct contact, either by phone or in person.

Interviews with 200 executives, and many of their secretaries, of companies of all sizes in New York, Chicago and Los Angeles by research consultants for an office equipment maker, the American Photocopy Equipment Co., Evanston, Ill., show that usually the smaller company chief executive handles a greater proportion of the firm's mail personally than does his counterpart in the big corporation.

That is because in the smaller company the top man is more concerned with the day to day business judgments. In the larger firm these problems automatically are addressed to division or department heads and forwarded there by the secretary of the big boss. Some companies estimate that as high as 75 per cent of the mail addressed to their top executive never reaches him—nor does he know about it.

Of the mail that does cross his desk, secretaries cite three basic types: 1. The significant involves a policy decision or specific business action. 2. The promotional is aimed at influencing his thinking either for present or future action. 3. The nonbusiness kind, which increases in proportion to the prestige of the man or of his company, concerns such things as organizations, charitable activities, or relationships with other executives in industrial, political or civic enterprises.

One executive estimates that about 65 per cent of his mail doesn't deal directly with his own company's business.

To Probe Radio, TV Advertising

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Dale Alford, D-Ark., said today a House Small Business subcommittee which he heads will conduct hearings later this year on radio and television advertising opportunities—or lack of them—for small business firms.

The hearings, he said, will be held after the adjournment of this session of Congress.

Alford said the subcommittee can "make a substantial contribution to small business firms by determining whether there is justification for serious complaints from small business generally about advertising time available and whether they are capable of participating in this form of advertising."

"At first I was tremendously pleased," said my friend. "Then I got suspicious. 'Sign nothing,' I told my wife. 'We'll hire our own lawyer.'"

"My whole nature had changed at the mere possibility of inheriting money. I hired a lawyer and sent him out West to investigate the situation. Each night I tossed sleepless in my bed, wondering how wealthy we'd be. I grew greedier and greedier and greedier."

"I tell you I was a greedy grasping physical wreck when our lawyer finally returned after the estate was settled."

"How much did you get?" "Well, after paying off our lawyer," my friend replied, "My wife and I found we were out exactly $137.42."

"But I learned a good lesson: Beware the possibility of inheriting money. It not only can destroy your character—it also can cost you dough!"

So the next time anyone tells you you've inherited a million dollars, back away fast.

It could ruin your whole life! Earn your own living and stay normal.

Presidents Have to Form Disabled Plan

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP)—Twice now American presidents and their vice presidents—because Congress wouldn't do anything on it—have had to agree between themselves on how a vice president takes over for a disabled president.

President Kennedy said Thursday he and Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson have made such an agreement. It turned out to be, word for word, the same as former President Dwight D. Eisenhower made with former Vice President Richard M. Nixon on March 3, 1958.

There's a big hole in it but it's the kind of hole which may never have to be filled.

The Constitution says that, in case of a president's inability to discharge his powers and duties, the vice president will take over. But it doesn't say what an inability is or who decides when inability exists and when it ends.

There has been argument over this constitutional clause since the Constitution was put together. But Eisenhower's heart attack in 1955 alerted him and the country to the need for some clarification—just in case.

His two attorneys general—first Herbert Brownell and then William P. Rogers—with the help of their Justice Department lawyers examined the problem and proposed to Congress, in 1956 and 1957, that it act on a constitutional amendment. It didn't.

So Eisenhower, with the help of Rogers and the best advice the latter could get, made an agreement with Nixon—an agreement now duplicated by Kennedy and Johnson with the help of the President's brother, Attorney General Robert Kennedy.

Robert Kennedy sees eye-to-eye with Rogers on the wording of the agreement and the constitutional thinking behind it. A lot of questions can be raised about it.

But the two attorneys general thought they had reached a reasonable solution. It should be noted these two agreements applied only to the four men involved. No future president or vice president is bound by them.

They will be free to make any other agreements they wish, or none. But since Kennedy and Johnson thought the Eisenhower-Nixon arrangement was good for them, their successors in the White House are likely to do the same until, or unless, Congress finally decides to act. That's unlikely.

The agreement says: 1. If the president becomes unable to carry out his duties he will—if he's able to—notify the vice president who will then act as president until the president's disability ends. 2. If the disabled president for some reason can't tell the vice president to take over for him temporarily, the vice president will consult with people he considers "appropriate" about taking over the presidency until the disability ends.

Should President John F. Kennedy become too disabled to tell Johnson to take over for him, it's a sure bet the vice president would not make a move without consulting Kennedy's brother, the attorney general.

The president will decide when his disability ends and resume his duties. All three of these arrangements raise questions but not more than the third in which a disabled president decides when he is no longer disabled. Suppose those around him still think he's too disabled to run the country. What then?

It's one of those iffy questions. Government lawyers say they probably rely on the value language of No. 3 at the present and then try to deal with particular facts and circumstances as they might arise.

While Brownell and Rogers asked Congress in vain for a con-

QUINTUPLET'S TWINS—Cecile Langlois, one of the four surviving Dionne quintuplets, has given birth to a set of twins. Weighing about six pounds each, the twin boys are the first multiple birth to any of the Dionne girls. Above, she stands with her husband Philip in Quebec City, Canada.

BITTER PILL FOR SPY—A poignant scene in "The Counterfeit Traitor" involves the breakup of a family because a husband dare not reveal his spy activities even to his wife. Here, Eric Erickson, played by William Holden, is shocked when his wife, Ingrid (actress Eva Dahlbeck) announces she is leaving him because of his sympathy toward the Nazis.

DOROTHY DIX Shouts and Murmurs

By HELEN WORDEN ERSKINE

Dear Helen: Why is it that some of these men figure they can put it over us women? They think they can step out and do as they darned please. They believe all a man need do is put on a white shirt to call himself a gentleman. But let a woman get out of line and the whole bunch will be on her neck, trying to make her look like a dog.

As far as I'm concerned it takes more than a white shirt to make a man a gentleman. I believe sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander. No double standards for me!—One of your Readers, Dear Reader: Hurrah for you! I'm on your side. The double standard is a hangover from Victorian days and should be relegated to the attic, if you've got one, along with the clinging vine.

Dear Helen: Can you tell me why girls who don't have to work for a living treat the ones who do so snippily?

The other day as I lunched in a small cafe at noon hour I witnessed the following: Eight young girls in their teens, members of a stitutional amendment to clear up the whole business once for all. House Speaker Sam Rayburn thought a simple congressional act might do.

Government lawyers disagreed. They said such an act would be challenged in the courts as unconstitutional. But the Kennedy-Johnson agreement is neither a act of Congress nor a constitutional amendment.

Therefore might not anything Johnson did, while acting as president for a disabled Kennedy, be challenged in court, too? For instance: if Johnson signed a bill which meant a loss of millions of dollars to someone.

But that's hypothetical at this point. Rogers and Robert Kennedy feel they have done their research and that the courts could uphold as constitutional the agreement they worked out.

'Unsinkable' at Baton Rouge

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) The raft "Unsinkable" and its crew of a dozen boys paused here Wednesday as they labored up the Mississippi River toward Minnesota.

The raft gained wide attention during its easy trip down river to New Orleans, which required over a month. It took eight days to get back here from New Orleans.

Ron Haar, one of four counselors with the boys, said they had thrown their schedule out the window. They just keep bolting the raft back together and repairing the battered drums which make up the pontoons.

Two of the boys were taken to a local physician's office to have infected feet treated. Haas said the infections weren't serious.

Haas said they were unable to get a piggy-back ride on an up-river barge as planned. Instead, they are having to fight the river currents with the raft's outboard engine.

"We get about two-fifths of a mile to the gallon," he said "and sometimes we just row in one spot for a while before we move at all."

ABC Against Beer Price Wars

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Beer drinkers may dream of price wars, but to the Alcoholic Beverage Control Commission they're nightmares.

And ABC Director Rolla Fitch says he's not going to tolerate any beer price wars. "The public doesn't want a price war over alcoholic beverages," Fitch said Thursday. "It would be a bad thing for the industry and all concerned."

He said the ABC would step in if a price war developed. The ABC doesn't have any power to set beer prices—it fixes hard liquor prices under a fair trade law—but it controls licensing for beer sales.

One chain grocery store in Arkansas now is selling beer at 79 cents for six bottles, Fitch said. It's usually $1 or more for six. The ABC is watching that situation, he said.

He wouldn't say where the store is.

Clues Sought in Motel Robbery

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP)—Investigators searched today for clues in the reported disappearance of $1,800 from a motel room here.

Jim B. Crawley of Grapevine, Tex., reported loss of the money Wednesday. A chambermaid at the motel was questioned Thursday and cleared.

Dear Working Man: Those girls have not been properly reared. They didn't know what good manners were because they had never been taught them. Go back to first cause: the parents. If the parents lack sensitivity, so will the children. They don't know that the basis of good manners is kindness to others. But, being members of a religious organization, the girls should be better grounded in the principle of the Golden Rule—Do unto others as you would have them do unto you. Not until they learn that can they qualify for real society.

Dear Helen: I entirely agree with you about mothers reading their children's mail. I am 16 and my Mom has never yet read one of my letters nor inquired who wrote me, or what the contents were, unless I volunteer the information. Mom and I both follow your column. —Constant Reader, Dear Constant: Letters like yours are gratifying, particularly

Ask Revision of Pay TV Ruling

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Motion picture theater operators have started action leading toward a court appeal of a pay television plan for Little Rock.

They asked the Public Service Commission Thursday to reconsider its approval of the plan. The PSC usually denies rehearings, thus clearing the way for court action.

Three theater groups filed the rehearing request. They fought the pay TV plan in hearings before the PSC. It was approved July 28.

Guards Save Lives of Two Swimmers

FORT SMITH, Ark. (AP)—An unidentified man and woman owe their lives to two officers of the 45th Infantry Division of the Oklahoma National Guard.

Lt. Col. Charles R. Gholston of Oklahoma City and Maj. Tom Morford, a state senator from Cherokee, were eating dinner at a motel when they noticed the couple splashing helplessly in the swimming pool. Both officers dove into the water fully clothed and pulled the swimmers to safety.

The swimmers left before they were identified.

Four Citations.

CONWAY, Ark. (AP)—About 1,000 people turned out Thursday night to see Dave Ward awarded four citations for his firm's practice of hiring old—and young—employees. Ward was cited by four agencies because 44 per cent of his 350 workers are aged 45 or older, and he employs many college students at his bus body works near here.

Small Change in Store Sales

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis reports department store sales in the Eighth Federal Reserve District the week ended Aug. 5 were one per cent below those of the similar week last year.

The Louisville area climbed 15 per cent, because of a larger number of stores in the area, and sales in seven smaller district cities were up five per cent.

But St. Louis, Memphis and Little Rock showed declines of four per cent.

Sales for the four-week period ending Aug. 4 were one per cent below those of the like period of last year as are district sales to date.

Mrs. Metzger opened the noisy cash register and waved a few bills over her head at him. "So who could confuse me with Lady Astor?" She put the two copper pennies on the counter and Gasser slid them into his sweating palm.

Then as she turned her back to put the bottle in with a rank of other empties, Gasser's mind pinpointed on the cool green bills she had waved. At his elbow stood another, larger bottle. This one, only for display, advertised a soft drink. He raised it high over the stooping form and then bled the cash register of its $17.

This much to Gasser was almost a fortune.

Gasser was just coming out of the Empress Theater four hours later when he met the police looking for him. As his eyes tried to focus on the sunset's brightness, he thought tiredly, it was probably Dutch that had made him the cops' pigeon.

Two of the fishermen were using minnows and worms. The angler with the heavy stringer was using the new "jig flies." Other names are "doll flies," "lead-heads" and a few others, depending on the locality.

Basically, they are all about the same thing. They are big, bushy, and have a hunk of lead on the eye of the hook. Hair streamers are nearly as old as the history of angling, but this variety is only two years old.

The secret of the lure is twofold: the hook eye is set on the top of the lead weight so the jig fly balances upright even when directly beneath the rod tip . . . and the hair is long, loose and wavy, giving a "breathing," tantalizing motion.

With a weighted head, the lure will dive quickly into the depths. A slight jerk of the rod tip makes it "jig" up and down, much in contrast to most action lures which weave.

Every species of fresh water gamefish and most salt water species, will hit these flies.

Walleyes love the white or yellow ones, bounced off the bottom of the lakes or rivers. Northern pike like black ones, with a strip of white pork rind on the hook. . . . and sometimes with a spinner on the front.

Black bass (largemouth) are attracted to the black variety, especially with a strip of black pork rind on the back and manipulated to imitate sleepy mud-puppies creeping on the bottom of a lake.

On the other hand, smallmouth bass like small white or yellow ones, plain, and sort of hustled in across shallow water in a series of jerks. During hot weather, they are also effective fished slow and deep.

Trout like little blue or brown jigs, made to crawl and jump on the stream bottom. Crappies prefer tiny 1-16 ounce white and pink jigs.

There are a lot of anglers, from Carolina to Seattle, who would like to catch a trophy-sized bass. They can do it—if they go where the bass are.

From north to south, east to west, those who bring in the real big ones are those who fish the "junkyards." Bass, "junkyards" are the thickets of submerged stumps, logs and brush where the big ones hang out. The problem is how to get the fish out without breaking the line.

Most lightweight spinning or fly-rod tackle is out. For this kind of fishing, a stout rod, a good reel and a line of 12-pound test or up are needed.

Needless lures, preferably with single hooks, are necessary. Also, weedless hooks with black pork rind, or a long, plastic nightcrawler will entice junkyarders from the brush. Whatever bait is used, it should be fished very slowly, so it creeps and crawls over, around and through the snags.

Remember: There is no aquatic junkyard too thick for bass. Even a small opening 24 inches across, may hold a wallop. And when your lure comes crawling across his front porch, look out and hold on!

Nagasaki Anniversary

NAGASAKI, Japan (AP)—Hundreds of small candle-lit paper lanterns for the dead were cast adrift on Nagasaki Bay tonight marking the 16th anniversary of the atomic bombing of Nagasaki.

Sirens and bells sounded throughout the city as hundreds of thousands joined in a minute of silent prayer at 11:02 a.m., the time the bomb was dropped Aug. 9, 1945.

Hepatitis Fatal to 3 Arkansans

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Three Arkansas women died of infectious hepatitis, a liver disease, last week, the State Health Department says there is no epidemic.

The deaths were isolated and had no apparent connection. The three deaths brought the total for the year to four.

THE DAY GASSER GOOFED

By DEEDE MADLENER

The boy called Gasser (nee Gerald) traveled alone most of the time, usually with a comic book in his back pocket, never with a pal. Someone had left the meaning of the word "pal" out of his retarded education. When he saw a kid from his block, walking on the other side of the street he took a chance and yelled over, "You got a dime I could have till Friday, Dutch?"

The other's voice echoed across the sizzling pavement, "Tune out, creep. I wouldn't trust you with the right time." Dutch went along without looking back, just clicking his fingers together in the air, like he was singing one of the Top Twenty to himself.

It was frying pan-hot on Peoria Street, and Gasser felt a genuine need, a real yen, for the air-conditioned coolness of the Empress Theater. But he needed two cents more for the price of a ticket.

He scrounged around the alley till he found a bent up pop bottle. Old lady Metzger's store was around the corner on Peoria, and he figured on getting the deposit and being able to make the three o'clock show.

When he opened the squeaky screen door of the delicatessen, a little silver bell at the top gave a merry tinkle. It sounded cool all of a sudden, like a Christmas bell, and Gasser couldn't resist opening and closing the screen a few more times just for kicks.

"I think maybe you like my jingly bell, huh? Mrs. Metzger asked, coming out of the back room winging her forehead in her soiled, once-white, apron.

"Yeah, it's a real flip all right."

"So you made me think there was 20 customers waiting, yet. Instead you let in 20 flies. So what you want?"

Gasser was never much of a spender, and she was impatient to get back to her electric fan and the TV soap opera in the back room.

"Don't blow your jets, it's a free country, ain't it? Just gimme the two cents deposit for this bottle and you can go back to soaking your feet."

"You talk really nice to an old lady. Not even out of high school yet, and already you're like a bum talking. It's always 'gimme' with you kids . . . what do your mama and papa teach you?"

"Hey, beat your teeth with somebody else, will ya? I want to get to the show. You think I asked for a million bucks."

Mrs. Metzger opened the noisy cash register and waved a few bills over her head at him. "So who could confuse me with Lady Astor?" She put the two copper pennies on the counter and Gasser slid them into his sweating palm.

Then as she turned her back to put the bottle in with a rank of other empties, Gasser's mind pinpointed on the cool green bills she had waved. At his elbow stood another, larger bottle. This one, only for display, advertised a soft drink. He raised it high over the stooping form and then bled the cash register of its $17.

This much to Gasser was almost a fortune.

Gasser was just coming out of the Empress Theater four hours later when he met the police looking for him. As his eyes tried to focus on the sunset's brightness, he thought tiredly, it was probably Dutch that had made him the cops' pigeon.

Two of the fishermen were using minnows and worms. The angler with the heavy stringer was using the new "jig flies." Other names are "doll flies," "lead-heads" and a few others, depending on the locality.

Basically, they are all about the same thing. They are big, bushy, and have a hunk of lead on the eye of the hook. Hair streamers are nearly as old as the history of angling, but this variety is only two years old.

The secret of the lure is twofold: the hook eye is set on the top of the lead weight so the jig fly balances upright even when directly beneath the rod tip . . . and the hair is long, loose and wavy, giving a "breathing," tantalizing motion.

With a weighted head, the lure will dive quickly into the depths. A slight jerk of the rod tip makes it "jig" up and down, much in contrast to most action lures which weave.

Every species of fresh water gamefish and most salt water species, will hit these flies.

Walleyes love the white or yellow ones, bounced off the bottom of the lakes or rivers. Northern pike like black ones, with a strip of white pork rind on the hook. . . . and sometimes with a spinner on the front.

Black bass (largemouth) are attracted to the black variety, especially with a strip of black pork rind on the back and manipulated to imitate sleepy mud-puppies creeping on the bottom of a lake.

On the other hand, smallmouth bass like small white or yellow ones, plain, and sort of hustled in across shallow water in a series of jerks. During hot weather, they are also effective fished slow and deep.

Trout like little blue or brown jigs, made to crawl and jump on the stream bottom. Crappies prefer tiny 1-16 ounce white and pink jigs.

There are a lot of anglers, from Carolina to Seattle, who would like to catch a trophy-sized bass. They can do it—if they go where the bass are.

From north to south, east to west, those who bring in the real big ones are those who fish the "junkyards." Bass, "junkyards" are the thickets of submerged stumps, logs and brush where the big ones hang out. The problem is how to get the fish out without breaking the line.

Most lightweight spinning or fly-rod tackle is out. For this kind of fishing, a stout rod, a good reel and a line of 12-pound test or up are needed.

Needless lures, preferably with single hooks, are necessary. Also, weedless hooks with black pork rind, or a long, plastic nightcrawler will entice junkyarders from the brush. Whatever bait is used, it should be fished very slowly, so it creeps and crawls over, around and through the snags.

Remember: There is no aquatic junkyard too thick for bass. Even a small opening 24 inches across, may hold a wallop. And when your lure comes crawling across his front porch, look out and hold on!

Nagasaki Anniversary

NAGASAKI, Japan (AP)—Hundreds of small candle-lit paper lanterns for the dead were cast adrift on Nagasaki Bay tonight marking the 16th anniversary of the atomic bombing of Nagasaki.

Sirens and bells sounded throughout the city as hundreds of thousands joined in a minute of silent prayer at 11:02 a.m., the time the bomb was dropped Aug. 9, 1945.

The deaths were isolated and had no apparent connection. The three deaths brought the total for the year to four.

Calif. Cool Cats Land on Fuzz Pad

By JACK SCHREIBMAN

HONOLULU (AP)—A couple of cool California cats, who cut the coast scene for a swing at Waikiki's most, landed in a fuzz pad to sweat out a jet home.

They're Joel W. Mueller and Robert C. Coughlin, each 17, of Panorama City, San Fernando Valley. They fear the worst, because the cops—"fuzz" to the initiated—are sort of down on them.

They hit the Hawaii scene last Sunday with $4.34 between them, two beat-up bongos and suitcases crammed with canned tuna, clam chowder, blankets and a flashlight.

Joel and Robert will bash the bongos unabashedly for anyone who'll listen. In fact, the fuzz down at the Juvenile Crime Prevention Bureau think they're the greatest.

When the cops crashed their pad Thursday—a shower room near Waikiki Beach—the cats had three cents between them. But their dispositions remained lively.

"Man," Coughlin explained to the cops, "we just couldn't find a job. I don't know how many coconuts we ate."

The boys hoped to land summer jobs to support themselves while here and earn plane fare home in time for school opening Sept. 12. Coughlin wanted a restaurant job for "free cats." Mueller wanted to tie in with a musical group—playing the bongos.

Gravely, the boys explained that a must on their list was to get new skins for their drums. They sadly displayed the instruments. And, true enough, they looked like the moths had been at them.

By day they walked the main drag, and by night they slept in the

As the little birds trust the mother bird, so let men trust God. If a sparrow cannot fall without God's attention, if He counts the hairs of our head... why do we fear (Mat. 10:29-31)? Worry about future security? God is the security for those who trust Him. Your Heavenly Father feeds the birds, and you are of far more value than they (Mat. 6:26). "Blessed are they who hunger for God's good things; they shall be filled." In childhood we needed mother and welcomed her... as adults we need God and ignore Him. In prosperity we forget God, the Bible, the church; but when disaster comes we want them all.

As your days so shall your strength be (Deut. 33:25). He will cover you with His feathers, and under His wings shall you trust (Psalms 91:4). Then why not trust God where you cannot see; the plan is His, the promise yours. "Blessed are they."
